Stimson Says Situation More Acute Than 1917

WAR SECRETARY ADDS HIS VOICE TO F. D. R.'S BILL

Program Will Help Build American Defense And Also Aid Britain

CENTRAL POWER URGED

Republican Cabinet Member Cites Places Taken By Italy, Japan

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16 — Declaring that the situation currently facing the United States "is much more acute and dangerous than in 1917," Secretary of War Stimson today outlined a far-reaching program for pooling British and American production of armaments, including mutual use of government-owned arsenals and factories.

Adding his indorsement of the lease-lend bill to those of Secretary of State Hull and Secretary of Treasury Morgenthau, the Republican Stimson told the House Foreign Affairs Committee that one purpose of the vast discretionary power given the President in the measure is to permit use of U. S. arsenals to supplement private production "by the special, skilled knowledge and equipment of the only existing American munitions industry — namely our government arsenals."

The secretary declared that the program not only will aid Great Britain and other nations, but will speed up production of vital arms and munitions for American defense.

Distribution Checked

The plan, he said, calls for unified government purchasing and production for both Great Britain and the United States. Another major feature of the program, he said, is that the United States is given power to control the distribution of munitions for the greatest strategic benefit of American defense.

Summarizing his reasons for supporting the measure, Stimson told the committee:

"I feel that the proposed bill is a forthright and clear grant of power which will enable the President to place in operation the best and simplest plan to carry out a national policy many times stated and endorsed.

"It substantially assists us in the job of caring for our own needs and the needs of those whose defense is a matter of vital importance to us.

"But it leaves in our hands the power to determine at the time when the munitions are completed the country which shall receive them, and thus to insure that this vital decision is made solely in the interests of the defense of the United States."

In the course of a 2,000-word prepared statement, Stimson said the enactment of the lease-lend (Continued on Page Four)

BRITISH ADMIT NEW DEAL THINKS OF WAR BY APRIL, OPPONENTS CHARGE

'Southampton' Damaged By Planes, Sent To Bottom By Own Forces

LONDON, Jan. 16 — Damaged by fire and bombs in an Italo-German air attack off Sicily, the 9,100-ton British cruiser Southampton has been sent to the bottom by the guns of other British war vessels, the admiralty announced today.

Most of the crew was saved when it became necessary to abandon the fire-swept warship. The Southampton, together with the aircraft carrier Illustrious, and the destroyer Gallant, had previously been listed as "damaged" as a result of the severe Italo-German air attack while they were engaged in protecting a convoy of British vessels carrying war supplies to Greece.

WILLKIE READY TO START TRIP TO WAR REGION

NEW YORK, Jan. 16—Wendell L. Willkie today completed preparations for departure next Wednesday aboard a Pan American clipper ship for Lisbon, Portugal, en route to London for a first-hand view of Britain at war.

Willkie will be accompanied by Landon Thorne, a retired business man, and John Cowles, editor of the Minneapolis Star-Journal.

The former GOP presidential candidate said he planned to talk with government officials and newspaper correspondents about England's war aims, to study English war-time production methods by personal factory visits, and to talk to the people of London to obtain their views concerning the social and economic implications of the struggle.

CHILDREN SUFFERING IN MIND, BODY TO BE MOVED

LONDON, Jan. 16—Compulsory evacuation of children "suffering in mind and body" as a result of air raids was ordered today by Minister of Health Malcolm MacDonald.

The regulation provides that local authorities may order medical examination of any child under 14 who they may have reason to suppose might suffer still more if left in the London metropolitan area.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16 — Leading non-interventionists today planned to carry their fight to the country against President Roosevelt's measure to lease or lend war materials to Great Britain on the grounds that administration circles are "thinking in terms of war by April."

Sen. Hiram Johnson (R) Calif., who fought the World Court in the days of the Wilson administration, announced that he will make a nationwide radio broadcast "within a week" to place the issue of President Roosevelt's foreign policy "before the American people."

It is presumed that the administration would select someone to reply to Johnson.

Sen. Wheeler (D) Mont., a leader of the senate non-interventionists, meanwhile charged that it is well-known in Washington that "highly-placed officials in the administration are thinking in terms of war by April."

Wheeler, who has consistently charged that Mr. Roosevelt's foreign policy is leading to war, refused to back down from his statement that the New Deal has embarked on a "triple A foreign policy to plow under every fourth American boy."

The Montana senator contends that Mr. Roosevelt's lease-lend program ultimately might lead to use of the U. S. Navy to convoy ships to Europe.

ALL RAIL TRAFFIC IN BUDAPEST IS SUSPENDED

BUDAPEST, Jan. 16—Railway traffic in Budapest today was suspended entirely for three days. Bad weather was given as the reason in an official communique.

BRITAIN'S UNITS HAMMER TOBRUK WITH ARTILLERY

CAIRO, Jan. 16—Tobruk today was subjected to ceaseless artillery hammering and repeated probing by Anzac patrols, while the remainder of the African fronts were comparatively quiet save for aerial activity on both sides.

Italian troops were reported throwing up breastworks 100 miles west of Tobruk in preparation for a firm stand in the Derna sector, where a mountain range almost reaches the Mediterranean and affords excellent natural defenses.

British authorities hinted that the difficulties of bringing up supplies to Tobruk from bases more than 200 miles to the west in Egypt were delaying the assault on Tobruk. On the other hand, it was stressed that, as in the case of Bardia, the most careful preparation would be made before any lives were risked in storming the Libyan port.

The present relative lull outside Tobruk was described as a necessary "period of waiting before the attack." This delay was viewed (Continued on Page Four)

Story of 'Illustrious' Attack Told

By Massey Anderson
ABOARD THE AIRCRAFT CARRIER ILLUSTRIOUS, AT A BRITISH MEDITERRANEAN PORT, Jan. 16—Britain's Navy and R. A. F. today were expected to "give immediate attention" to spreading German air bases in the Mediterranean following the January 10 attack on a convoy in which 1000-pound bombs hit the Illustrious.

Victor in history's greatest battle between aircraft and warships, the 23,000-ton Illustrious now is in harbor undergoing repairs. She is badly damaged, but in a fight with from 40 to 50 Nazi planes in the Luftwaffe's first Mediterranean adventure, she blasted at least half a dozen German craft from the skies.

The Royal Air Force's attacks

this week on Catania, Sicily, will be followed by other flying raids combined with fleet action, it is believed. In addition to Sicily, it was thought that the German air force has taken over other Italian bases in this sea.

For seven hours the Luftwaffe staged a series of attacks on the Illustrious, which retorted with scorching blasts of anti-aircraft fire as the aircraft carrier sped on with its convoy of merchant ships. Germany's first air attack in the Mediterranean was launched when two torpedo-carrying planes appeared, but their deadly missiles passed harmlessly astern of the Illustrious.

Shortly afterwards the main assault began when three Junkers-87 Stukas dived on the Illustrious, followed quickly by four more—all

Ordinance To Close City Drinking Spots At 12 Midnight Read Once

Determined to "make ends meet" in its 1941 budget, City Council, Wednesday night, slashed $12,000 from the city's current operating expenses, cutting nearly every item in the budget and bringing 1941 expenditures from the general fund closer to estimated receipts.

Total appropriations from the general fund will run slightly over $50,000, with an estimated 1941 income of $52,000.

Item in the budget to take the largest cut was the city light bill appropriation, where councilmen chipped off $3,000. The reduction may make it necessary to darken some city streets, councilmen believed.

The police department took a cut of $2,620 for operation costs with $300 cuts from appropriations for special police and $300 for fuel, light and supplies.

The fire department suffered a $1,955 reduction in its allotted appropriation this year, with operating expenses cut to a minimum. Outdoor relief and expenses for city engineers were reduced $500 and $300 respectively, and expenses for employees for city buildings, for Berger Hospital and for the city library were smaller.

No Salary Cutting

Councilmen said they did not intend to order a general slash in salaries, but will slash every incidental expense to rock bottom, supplies, repairs and equipment purchases to be almost entirely eliminated in the next year. Council has not yet fixed the salary appropriation for the disposal plant.

Appropriations made Wednesday night, subject to revision by the council finance committee, include: general $5,313, safety $18,230, health, $2,885, service $16,537.78, cemetery $50, firemen's pension fund $500, police pension fund $2,110, hospital $21,150, disposal plant $10,110, library $11,000, street repair from vehicle (Continued on Page Four)

Strong Naval Base Rendered Useless By Major Offensive; Emden, Bremerhaven Damaged; Heavy Fire Greet's Reich's Attack

LONDON SAYS GERMANS TO FEEL LOSS

Berlin Admits 20 Killed, Reports Many Fires, But Declares That Quick Action Saved City From Serious Conflagration

LONDON, Jan. 16—Wilhelmshaven, strong German naval base, was blasted into uselessness and Emden, Bremerhaven, and half a dozen other key Nazi centers were badly damaged during the night as the RAF resumed powerful and widespread raids on the continent, the Air Ministry announced today.

In a record assault—greatest of two score which have pounded the mighty German nest for sea raiders—Wilhelmshaven was so badly crippled that "considerable time will be required before it will be able to resume normal war work," the Air Ministry asserted.

One of the greatest single air attacks of the war, the raid on Wilhelmshaven lasted all night.

Tons of high explosives and hundreds of incendiary bombs were poured on the port, while the RAF also blasted an unlisted number of Nazi invasion and bombing centers on the continent.

Nazi Attacks Resume

Britain struck by air as Germany likewise resumed attacks on a broad area in England. Met by heavy anti-aircraft fire over London and other centers, and forced to engage improved British night fighters, the Germans caused little damage and few casualties, however.

Up to 2 p. m. (8 a. m. Circleville time) no daylight raids on England were reported.

British airmen struck through bitter cold and dangerous flying weather on 600-mile round trip stabs to make the RAF's 40th and by far the greatest attack on Wilhelmshaven, the Air Ministry said.

Germany will feel keenly the crippling of the port, one of her most valuable centers for building, outfitting and repairing submarines and other war craft, authorities in London said.

Describing last night's wide forays, the Air Ministry declared: "The naval base at Wilhelmshaven was the main objective of last night's operations by the bomber command."

"The attacks continued throughout the night, and caused extensive fires in the target area."

Other Areas Blasted

"Docks at Emden, Bremerhaven, Rotterdam and Flushing also were bombed, as well as aerodromes (Continued on Page Four)"

FATHER, IRKED BY BABY'S CRYING, BREAKS HIS LEG

BATTLE CREEK, Mich., Jan. 16 —Because the child's crying annoyed him, Jay T. Rutledge, 23, twisted his nine-months-old son's leg until it broke, according to a charge filed against the young father now held in Calhoun County jail awaiting circuit court arraignment.

Rutledge, a laborer and the father of two small children, waived examination before Justice Charles Young on a charge of cruel and unlawful punishment of a child and was ordered held in default of $2,500 bond.

European Bulletins

LONDON—At least five babies were killed in last night's German raid on a midland town, British officials charged today.

NEW YORK—Registration of the nation's 8,000 dietitians for possible National Defense duty was under way today by the American Dietetic Association. Many are now needed in army hospitals.

DETROIT—The assertion that Holland is still at war with Germany and 98 percent of Holland's population is fighting that war, was left today by Dr. Alexander Loudon, Netherlands' minister to the United States. "People," he said, "do not seem to understand that Holland is still at war with Germany, and 98 percent of her people are fighting that battle."

VICHY—Diplomatic circles in Vichy today said they were convinced that Russia and Germany have reached a secret agreement on Balkan problems but, in spite of this reported understanding, Turkey still is determined to resist any German thrusts through Bulgaria.

FIRST AMERICAN DEFENSE FORCE STARTS TO BASE

NEW YORK, Jan. 16—Shrouded in virtual war-time secrecy, the first American defense expeditionary force assigned for service at the new defense bases obtained from Great Britain in the destroyer trade was enroute today to Newfoundland.

The soldiers, clad in heavy uniforms against the northern climate, left aboard the U. S. army transport Edmund S. Alexander. The number of men sailing, the numerical designations of their units and the amount of military equipment they carried was withheld by army officials in the interests of National Defense.

KENNETH MAY OFFERS TO SERVE YEAR IN ARMY

Kenneth Milton May, 324 East Mound Street, became Pickaway County's 44th volunteer Thursday. His order number was 764.

Unless one of the previous volunteers fails to pass his physical examination, Mr. May will not be included in the February 6 call. Selective Service officials stated, since the volunteer list is sufficient to fill the board's quota of 24 on that date.

Germany will feel keenly the crippling of the port, one of her most valuable centers for building, outfitting and repairing submarines and other war craft, authorities in London said.

Describing last night's wide forays, the Air Ministry declared: "The naval base at Wilhelmshaven was the main objective of last night's operations by the bomber command."

"The attacks continued throughout the night, and caused extensive fires in the target area."

FATHER, IRKED BY BABY'S CRYING, BREAKS HIS LEG

BATTLE CREEK, Mich., Jan. 16—Because the child's crying annoyed him, Jay T. Rutledge, 23, twisted his nine-months-old son's leg until it broke, according to a charge filed against the young father now held in Calhoun County jail awaiting circuit court arraignment.

Rutledge, a laborer and the father of two small children, waived examination before Justice Charles Young on a charge of cruel and unlawful punishment of a child and was ordered held in default of $2,500 bond.

European Bulletins

LONDON—At least five babies were killed in last night's German raid on a midland town, British officials charged today.

NEW YORK—Registration of the nation's 8,000 dietitians for possible National Defense duty was under way today by the American Dietetic Association. Many are now needed in army hospitals.

DETROIT—The assertion that Holland is still at war with Germany and 98 percent of Holland's population is fighting that war, was left today by Dr. Alexander Loudon, Netherlands' minister to the United States. "People," he said, "do not seem to understand that Holland is still at war with Germany, and 98 percent of her people are fighting that battle."

VICHY—Diplomatic circles in Vichy today said they were convinced that Russia and Germany have reached a secret agreement on Balkan problems but, in spite of this reported understanding, Turkey still is determined to resist any German thrusts through Bulgaria.

FIRST AMERICAN DEFENSE FORCE STARTS TO BASE

NEW YORK, Jan. 16—Shrouded in virtual war-time secrecy, the first American defense expeditionary force assigned for service at the new defense bases obtained from Great Britain in the destroyer trade was enroute today to Newfoundland.

The soldiers, clad in heavy uniforms against the northern climate, left aboard the U. S. army transport Edmund S. Alexander. The number of men sailing, the numerical designations of their units and the amount of military equipment they carried was withheld by army officials in the interests of National Defense.

KENNETH MAY OFFERS TO SERVE YEAR IN ARMY

Kenneth Milton May, 324 East Mound Street, became Pickaway County's 44th volunteer Thursday. His order number was 764.

Unless one of the previous volunteers fails to pass his physical examination, Mr. May will not be included in the February 6 call. Selective Service officials stated, since the volunteer list is sufficient to fill the board's quota of 24 on that date.

THE accompanying scenes depict the carnival atmosphere which prevails during the "Cook's Carnival"—1941 version of The Daily Herald Cooking School which is to be presented here soon. This program is entirely different from any cooking event of its kind and is popularly called the year's most novel cooking school.

(1) A scene from the opening day's program, "The Midway," showing the carnival barker about to introduce one of the cooking "acts" of the first day's presentation. (2) The camera catches the carnival clown cutting a few capers much to the distraction of the food lecturer. (3) The carnival cowboy, ten-gallon hat and all, welcomes the audience to the Cook's Carnival. (4) A scene from the interesting second day program in which baking takes the spotlight, and (5) the highly decorated motor trailer which serves as the traveling home of the 1941 Cook's Carnival. The 1941 Cooking School will be presented in Circleville at Memorial Hall Auditorium on January 21, 22, 23, beginning each afternoon at 2:00. It is being brought here through the cooperation of the Herald, Circleville merchants and The Gas Company.

CONFAB OF OHIO FAIR MANAGERS SETS NEW MARK

COLUMBUS, Jan. 16—Breaking attendance records of its 16 years of existence, the annual convention of the Ohio Fair Managers Association was to conclude its sessions tonight with a banquet at which the best county fair in 1940 was to be presented a trophy by former Governor Myers Y. Cooper.

Approximately 1,100 persons were in attendance at yesterday's opening session at which a carnival atmosphere prevailed. Dr. Carl Watson, Ohio WPA Director, spoke to those attending and urged fair directors to submit projects to the WPA.

At tonight's banquet, Governor Bricker, Director of Agriculture John T. Brown, Mrs. Lottie Randolph, his assistant, and Dr. Howard L. Bevis, President of Ohio State University, will speak in addition to Cooper.

Dates for the Ohio State Fair, to be held August 23 to 29, were approved yesterday in addition to dates of 90 other fairs throughout the state.

FARM LOAN UNIT PLANS ITS SESSION JANUARY 22

One hundred and fifty members of the Pickaway County National Farm Loan Association Thursday received invitations to the annual luncheon meeting to be held at the American Hotel Hurricane, Wednesday, January 22, beginning at 11 a. m.

Annual reports and elections will be held during the morning. After lunch Mrs. Blanche Bowers, of the Rural Rehabilitation Administration, and Ralph Platter, of the Federal Land Bank, will address the group.

The meeting will close at 2:15.

SHENANDOAH, Ia.—Henry Read, Shenandoah attorney, collected damages on the spot when a truck driver smashed into his car and crumpled a fender. But Read didn't have time to get a good look at the money. Backing away from the scene of the accident, he was unable to keep his car from sliding into a machine driven by Lynn Bickett, Faragut, Iowa, editor. Read promptly turned the money over to Bickett.

TEN NAMED FOR TRIP TO F. D.'S INAUGURAL RITE

COLUMBUS, Jan. 16 — Ten members of the legislature were selected today to represent Ohio at President Roosevelt's third inauguration next Monday. They were: Senators Jameson (R-Lorain); Daniels (R-Greenfield); Hays (D-Flushing); Parker (D-Akron); and Connolly (D-Toledo). Reps. Mason (D-Wyandot); Shilling (D-Stark); Hudlett (D-Cuyahoga); McChesney (R-Greene) and Mees (R-Meigs).

Republicans complained that the junket to Washington was "unwarranted" and a "waste of taxpayers' money," but on the roll call on the resolution empowering the state to foot the bill, most of them voted with the Democrats.

STAR ATHLETE LAKE'S VICTIM

Ross County Youth Drowns - At Adena As 100 Watch Rescue Efforts

CHILLICOTHE, Jan. 16 — Seventeen-year-old Harold Flack, star center on Unioto School's basketball team, was dead today, the victim of drowning in ice-strewn Adena Lake. Flack went under before the gaze of a hundred persons as a rescue crew eased across the ice toward him.

The youth might have been rescued before going under, firemen believed, if they had been called immediately after Flack broke through the ice. A misdirected call was made to city police, who went to investigate the report and found the boy in the water. Thus time was lost as others went to a telephone to call firemen.

Flack was the son of Milton and Georgia Blake Flack. He is survived by his parents, a brother, Jack, at home, and his grandmother, Mrs. Scioto Flack. Services will be conducted at Fawcett's funeral home Friday at 2 o'clock, with burial in Greenlawn.

GOVERNOR ASKS MORE CASH FOR WELFARE, AGED

Bricker's Message Gains
Full G.O.P. Support
Democrats Quiet

NO NEW TAXES NEEDED

Strictest Economy Urged
By Executive; Slash In
Relief Expected

COLUMBUS, Jan. 16 — While Democrats maintained discreet silence, Republican leaders of the 94th General Assembly asserted confidently today they would have little trouble in pushing through most of the legislative recommendations outlined by Governor Bricker in his personal message before a joint session of the lawmakers.

Furthermore, GOP leaders in the House and Senate maintained they expected to heed Bricker's plea for "strictest economy" despite his insistence that appropriations for the welfare and old age pension departments, state universities and schools should be increased this biennium a total of $10,960,000.

Addressing the Assembly after a total of 76 bills had been introduced, many of them proposing heavy additional expenditures, Bricker declared:

"I urge on this legislature the strictest economy, the most careful supervision of the departments' appropriations that money might be saved for the needs of the people of Ohio, that business might be encouraged, that labor might be employed, and finally for the new demands for defenses."

To Aid Municipalities

The chief executive advocated continuation of the "no new or increased taxes" plank promised during his first term in office. However, he admitted that some municipalities would need financial assistance, and added that every effort should be made to provide funds for a building program for schools and state institutions for feeble minded, insane and other wards.

Majority House Floor Leader Harold Houston, Urbana, said he thought Republicans were "enthusiastic about Bricker's program, and foresaw no difficulty in pushing it through. He asserted that improving business conditions resulting from defense orders would keep increased revenues flowing into the treasury to insure money for additional appropriations.

Sen. Frank Whittemore, majority leader in the Senate, averred the governor's program would be put through as expeditiously as possible but that proper consideration would be given to all measures.

"I see no reason why there will not again be complete cooperation between all branches of the state government," House Speaker McCulloch (R-Miami) declared. "I believe the Republican members of the House are unanimously in accord with Governor Bricker's program."

House Minority Leader H. L. Mason, Wyandot, declined to comment on Bricker's message, asserting he wanted time to study the various proposals.

"The governor's suggestion for the reorganization of the welfare department should be carried out as far as funds will permit," Senator Siebert (R-St. Marys) commented.

"Governor Bricker's message was one that you would expect from an able executive such as he has proven to be," Senator Adams (R-Bowling Green) added.

Relief Cost To Be Cut

In his message, Bricker asserted he anticipated a reduction in relief costs of at least $4,000,000 during the biennium because of re-employment of men for defense industries. Then he advocated increased appropriations for the following four departments:

Aid for Aged, an increase of $6,500,000 as the state's share for the biennium.

Welfare department, $2,250,000 more for operating costs.

State universities, $1,000,000 for operating costs because of increased enrollment.

School foundation program $1,210,000, mostly needed for transportation "due to the elimination of the small school and centralization of township schools."

Urging the state to continue on a "pay-as-you-go" basis, the governor added:

"I ask careful scrutiny of all these increases."

While he advocated a building program for the care of insane, feeble minded and other wards, the chief executive left to the legislature the problem of finding money to finance it.

Earlier, he had expressed the hope that the legislature would appropriate at least $5,000,000 to inaugurate a long-range program for construction of a feeble minded institute at Apple Creek, Wayne County, and new buildings at the London Prison Farm.

He warned the assembly against anticipated attempts of local subdivisions to obtain a greater portion of the sales tax because "they will spend all that you will appropriate." However, he admitted that some thing would have to be done to aid financially-stricken municipalities.

To insure adequate revenue during the biennium, Bricker advocated re-enactment of present liquid fuel, cigarette and public utilities taxes. Bills on those proposals already have been submitted in the assembly.

Creation of a Guard to supplement the National Guard while it is in federal service also was recommended by the governor. He said that might be accomplished by creating a temporary State guard or increasing the personnel of the state highway patrol.

Reimbursement Favored

While asserting that no more than the $20,000,000 appropriated during the last biennium would be needed for relief this year and next, the chief executive went on record as favoring a bill to provide an additional $2,209,210 to reimburse cities for money spent for that purpose last year.

A measure to appropriate that amount already has been passed by the Senate and speedy action on it is expected in the House.

Bricker approved virtually all suggestions contained in a report submitted by a special Senate Taxation committee to revise the state's tax structure.

One suggestion he considered of paramount importance would divert a portion of the local government share of motor vehicle license revenues, earmarked for roads, into the general fund.

Such a move, he added, would make possible complete payment during the biennium of the $12,000,000 school deficit.

The governor described agriculture as "the greatest single business in Ohio and recommended increased agricultural services and a new building program for the state fair grounds. As a "minimum of need" he urged construction of a girls' dormitory and an exhibition hall for the Junior Fair.

Bricker also backed a proposal to continue the Ohio River pollution prevention program.

For the judicial branch of the government, the chief executive favored abolition of short terms of judges in the state supreme court, common pleas and appellate courts.

Throughout his message he urged the legislature to maintain a cautious attitude when considering bills that required spending and concluded by pledging "to you and the people of this state that I shall conscientiously carry out that program when you enact it."

Take Charge, Mister... and Let's Fireball!

THERE'S a new word spreading through the vocabularies of car owners who have made firsthand acquaintances with this slick new 1941 Buick.

It's a word we first picked out as an apt description of a new and better engine — but it is rapidly coming to mean a completely new and excitingly pleasurable manner of motorcar travel.

All over the country, "to fireball" now means to enjoy both ease and dispatch in your travel by car — with a very special new manner of thrift.

Not the ordinary, scrumpy, self-denying sort of thrift, but thrift with all the thrills left in!

Now, just why that happens is easy to understand.

*Optional equipment on the Buick SPECIAL, standard on all other series.

Reinforced by Compound Carburetion* this FIREBALL eight develops nearly 17% more horsepower on exactly the same fuel rationing.

With all that power on call, we can use a more economical gear ratio as our standard high gear—a ratio that ups miles per gallon by giving more revolutions of the wheels for every revolution of the engine.

Then, in addition, we have in Compound Carburetion a fuel supply system that adjusts itself according to the driving conditions you meet.

Thus your engine is always getting the utmost benefit out of the least amount of gasoline that will give the performance you want.

And that spells economy.

So much economy that a man who drives 15,000 miles a year gets as much as 2,000 miles' extra driving on the same amount of fuel.

And that, Buick buyers will tell you, is something very much worth looking into through a free demonstration such as any Buick dealer will gladly give.

GOVERNOR ASKS MORE CASH FOR WELFARE, AGED

Bricker's Message Gains
Full G.O.P. Support
Democrats Quiet

NO NEW TAXES NEEDED

Strictest Economy Urged
By Executive; Slash In
Relief Expected

COLUMBUS, Jan. 16 — While Democrats maintained discreet silence, Republican leaders of the 94th General Assembly asserted confidently today they would have little trouble in pushing through most of the legislative recommendations outlined by Governor Bricker in his personal message before a joint session of the lawmakers.

Furthermore, GOP leaders in the House and Senate maintained they expected to heed Bricker's plea for "strictest economy" despite his insistence that appropriations for the welfare and old age pension departments, state universities and schools should be increased this biennium a total of $10,960,000.

Addressing the Assembly after a total of 76 bills had been introduced, many of them proposing heavy additional expenditures, Bricker declared:

"I urge on this legislature the strictest economy, the most careful supervision of the departments' appropriations that money might be saved for the needs of the people of Ohio, that business might be encouraged, that labor might be employed, and finally for the new demands for defenses."

To Aid Municipalities

The chief executive advocated continuation of the "no new or increased taxes" plank promised during his first term in office. However, he admitted that some municipalities would need financial assistance, and added that every effort should be made to provide funds for a building program for schools and state institutions for feeble minded, insane and other wards.

Majority House Floor Leader Harold Houston, Urbana, said he thought Republicans were "enthusiastic about Bricker's program, and foresaw no difficulty in pushing it through. He asserted that improving business conditions resulting from defense orders would keep increased revenues flowing into the treasury to insure money for additional appropriations.

Sen. Frank Whittemore, majority leader in the Senate, averred the governor's program would be put through as expeditiously as possible but that proper consideration would be given to all measures.

"I see no reason why there will not again be complete cooperation between all branches of the state government," House Speaker McCulloch (R-Miami) declared. "I believe the Republican members of the House are unanimously in accord with Governor Bricker's program."

House Minority Leader H. L. Mason, Wyandot, declined to comment on Bricker's message, asserting he wanted time to study the various proposals.

"The governor's suggestion for the reorganization of the welfare department should be carried out as far as funds will permit," Senator Siebert (R-St. Marys) commented.

"Governor Bricker's message was one that you would expect from an able executive such as he has proven to be," Senator Adams (R-Bowling Green) added.

Relief Cost To Be Cut

In his message, Bricker asserted he anticipated a reduction in relief costs of at least $4,000,000 during the biennium because of re-employment of men for defense industries. Then he advocated increased appropriations for the following four departments:

Aid for Aged, an increase of $6,500,000 as the state's share for the biennium.

Welfare department, $2,250,000 more for operating costs.

State universities, $1,000,000 for operating costs because of increased enrollment.

School foundation program $1,210,000, mostly needed for transportation "due to the elimination of the small school and centralization of township schools."

Urging the state to continue on a "pay-as-you-go" basis, the governor added:

"I ask careful scrutiny of all these increases."

While he advocated a building program for the care of insane, feeble minded and other wards, the chief executive left to the legislature the problem of finding money to finance it.

Earlier, he had expressed the hope that the legislature would appropriate at least $5,000,000 to inaugurate a long-range program for construction of a feeble minded institute at Apple Creek, Wayne County, and new buildings at the London Prison Farm.

He warned the assembly against anticipated attempts of local subdivisions to obtain a greater portion of the sales tax because "they will spend all that you will appropriate." However, he admitted that some thing would have to be done to aid financially-stricken municipalities. To insure adequate revenue during the biennium, Bricker advocated re-enactment of present liquid fuel, cigarette and public utilities taxes. Bills on those proposals already have been submitted in the assembly.

Creation of a Guard to supplement the National Guard while it is in federal service also was recommended by the governor. He said that might be accomplished by creating a temporary State guard or increasing the personnel of the state highway patrol.

Reimbursement Favored

While asserting that no more than the $20,000,000 appropriated during the last biennium would be needed for relief this year and next, the chief executive went on record as favoring a bill to provide an additional $2,209,210 to reimburse cities for money spent for that purpose last year.

The governor described agriculture as "the greatest single business in Ohio and recommended increased agricultural services and a new building program for the state fair grounds. As a "minimum of need" he urged construction of a girls' dormitory and an exhibition hall for the Junior Fair.

Bricker also backed a proposal to continue the Ohio River pollution prevention program.

For the judicial branch of the government, the chief executive favored abolition of short terms of judges in the state supreme court, common pleas and appellate courts.

Throughout his message he urged the legislature to maintain a cautious attitude when considering bills that required spending and concluded by pledging "to you and the people of this state that I shall conscientiously carry out that program when you enact it."

Ohio Legislators Propose 76 Bills In Senate, House

COLUMBUS, Jan. 16—Bill hoppers of the senate and house bulged today under the strain of 76 measures dropped in on the first call for proposed legislation, with the weeding out process to start when the assembly reconvenes next Tuesday.

Topping the list of House measures was the Huml (D-Cuyahoga) bill, a replica of the Wagner federal labor act, creating a state labor relations board.

Other bills dealt with almost every conceivable subject, including one by Rep. Nailer (R-Franklin) providing that all holidays except Easter be observed on Mondays. Easter always would be the second Sunday in April.

Three members named by the governor and confirmed by the senate would comprise the Ohio labor mediation board within the department of industrial relations, under the Huml bill.

They would serve for three years (except two of the first three named who would be in office one and two years) and would receive $5,000 a year and travel expenses.

The state labor board would exercise wide powers over employer-employee relations, paralleling authority vested in the national board.

Some of the employer practices termed unlawful in the Huml bill are:

Spying on activities of employees, blacklisting employees for union activity, dominating or interfering with formation of employee bargaining groups, requiring an employee to join a company union or refrain from joining a labor union of his own choosing, and refusing to bargain collectively with representatives of employees.

The bill states specifically that none of its provisions shall be construed as interfering with the right to strike. Any person aggrieved by a final order of the board would have recourse to the common pleas courts, but the appeal would not automatically stay execution of the order.

OHIO ASSEMBLY ASKED TO ALTER VACATION DATES

COLUMBUS, Jan. 16—Citizens of Ohio can look forward to long holiday week ends, but much calendar confusion in the future if a bill introduced in the house of representatives by Rep. Nailer (R-Franklin) is adopted by the 94th general assembly.

Nailer's bill requests that all legal holidays fall on Monday but specifically recommends that New Year's Day remain on the first day of the new year and Labor Day remain the first Monday in September.

As for the remainder of the legal holidays he seeks to combined celebration of Washington's and Lincoln's birthday on the same day—the second Monday in February—instead of the 12th and 22nd.

That Decoration Day be set for the fourth Monday of May instead of May 30.

Independence Day on the first Monday of July instead of the traditional Fourth Day of the Month.

Columbus Day on the second Monday of October instead of October 12.

Armistice Day on the Second Monday of November instead of November 11 when the World war armistice was officially signed.

Thanksgiving Day on the third Monday of November instead of the Thursday designated by the president.

Christmas Day on the third Monday in December instead of December 25.

And Easter Sunday on the second Sunday in April instead of the Sunday designated by the age-old method of fixing Easter by means of an ancient ecclesiastical law.

POLITICAL AGREEMENT

THERE is more common ground today between the two political parties in this country, and between their two leaders, than the nation could have expected. To fair-minded observers there seems to be no good reason now why the principal leaders and parties, in and outside of Congress, should not be able to agree on the main points of armament policy and procedure and go along together.

The problem, as Mr. Willkie states it, is the twofold one of "keeping America out of the war and keep the war out of America." Examining the present "lend-lease" bill now before Congress, he has concluded and frankly stated that "with modifications it should be adopted." The modifications he suggests are briefly as follows:

That Congress must not be hurried into blind acceptance, but there must be full debate and full reservation of congressional rights;

That whatever grant of power is given the President must be for a limited period;

That the administration must nevertheless have power to act during the emergency;

That debate on the bill conferring such extraordinary power should not be of a partisan nature;

THAT "Wizard of Oz" business in North Africa continues to interest war commentators, especially the more irreverent ones. The famous Wizard, who ruled a mythical kingdom, was a wonder-worker who bluffed everybody until he was shown up by a fearless realist. Since those British troops in Africa started kicking the stuffing out of Benito Mussolini, the world has seen a great light.

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN

MURRAY APPEASES

WASHINGTON—Phil Murray, new CIO head, apparently is pursuing a policy of trying to carry water on both shoulders. There was a plum for both leftwingers and antis in his latest organizational moves.

The antis cheered when Murray announced that Reid Robinson would replace Lee Pressman as secretary of the legislative committee. This was a big feather in the cap of the antis and a very significant slap-down for Pressman. In the last few years, during the rule of John L. Lewis, Pressman ran the committee with an iron hand.

Because of his use of leftist tactics, Pressman was disliked on Capitol Hill and was repeatedly in hot water. But through his drag with Lewis, none of his numerous CIO foes was able to curb him and he operated as he pleased.

His ouster from the key post caused much jubilation among the antis, who have been muttering disappointedly for weeks over Murray's failure to use the axe on strategically-placed leftwingers. But this pleasure was short-lived.

The next day Murray announced the appointment of John T. Jones, director of Labor's Nonpartisan League, as CIO legislative representative on Capitol Hill. This was a solar-plexus blow.

A United Mine Worker official, Jones is one of Lewis' most intimate henchmen and completely under his thumb. Jones owes both his UMW and LNL jobs to Lewis, and he is one of the few UMW leaders who followed Lewis in bolting to Willkie. Personally amiable and a hail-fellow, Jones is no leftwinger, but he takes his orders from Lewis and will follow any "party line" he lays down.

In CIO circles the appointment was taken as clear evidence that the shadow of Lewis still looms potent over Murray and that he does not feel himself strong enough to be his own boss.

GETTING READY

Lewis, confined to his home the past few weeks with a heart condition, is spending his time culling over UMW officer rolls. The inside word is that there is a double purpose behind this:

One: to take vengeance on local leaders who refused to bow to his pressure to support Willkie. Two: to put followers he can depend on into office in preparation for a major coal strike April 1, when the present UMW contract with the operators expires.

Seething with hatred of the President, and an extremist foe of his foreign policies, Lewis is credited with planning to make strong demands on the mine owners. The order for a special $2 assessment on all UMW members already has gone out to provide a strike fund if needed. And unless prevented by ill health, Lewis will head the UMW negotiating group—a key position to churn things up.

Privately, government labor chiefs make no secret of their concern over the situation. A major coal strike would play havoc with defense production, particularly in the spring when it will be greatly accelerated.

Transfusions—A Medical Problem of War

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Last week I mentioned the fact that the Committee on National Preparedness had appointed medical committees to attack certain problems and one of them is blood transfusion. One of my friends asked me just what problem was involved because he thought transfusion was a form of medical treatment which had been solved

Dr. Clendenning will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

technically. Perhaps my readers will be interested in the explanation.

Transfusion of blood from one human being to another has been, indeed, one of the great advances in treatment. It is valuable in surgical shock, in hemorrhage after any injury, and, therefore, of course, particularly valuable in war surgery. However, creates problems in regard to transfusion which are not met with in civil life.

Blood Banks

In large scale engagements a great deal of blood is needed and donors cannot be spared from the fighting line. The first attempt to solve this problem was to create blood banks. As is well known, people must be tested to see whether the blood they give will fit the blood of the recipient. There are certain classes known as "universal donors" whose blood can be transfused into anybody without harm. These blood banks are obtained from the universal donors and stored in sterile flasks with an anticoagulant, sodium citrate, added. The trouble with this was that these banks are liable to degenerate and cause severe reactions when transfusion is given.

It took six months of the present war for the British to rediscover what was found in 1916; that glucose added to these blood banks will do much to preserve the blood and reduce reactions. It has been further found, however, by the British and French, that whole blood is not necessary. When hemorrhage occurs, and often in surgical shock, the principal difficulty is simply lack of fluid in the blood vessels. Salt solution put in simply pours out through the kidneys and sweat glands, but it is possible to replace the volume by the use of blood serum, or blood plasma, which is the substance which results after a clot has formed in drawn blood.

Use of Plasma

These plasma banks have proved very useful and are not subject to the deterioration that occurs in whole blood banks. The only objection to them has been their bulk. A new development has been that the plasma is allowed to dry so that very large amounts of what is potentially blood plasma can be stored in a relatively small space and moved with moving troops. All that is needed to be done is to add some sort of a diluent so that this plasma is put back in solution.

This series of experiences, with gradual improvement, has been the result of a great deal of work on the part of the English Medical Research Council and the Medical Department of the U. S. Army.

E. D. P.:—"Is the constant taking of Brewer's yeast harmful?"
Answer—I know of no report which indicates that it is possible to get an overdose of Brewer's yeast. It is the kind of a product that self-limits its own dosage because very few people would care to take more than reasonable amounts.

The Circleville budget for 1931 was set at $98,638 by the city council at an adjourned meeting.

Nathan Bohnert, Democratic representative, obtained the position as page in the general assembly for James A. Ball, 20, a student at Ohio State University, and son of Mrs. Anna Ball-of Walnut Township.

Newly-elected officers of the Pickaway County Medical Society included Dr. B. R. Bales, president; Dr. H. D. Jackson, vice president; Dr. G. T. Rowe, treas-

MURDER MAKES A HERO

By ELLIOTT FILLION
WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

CHAPTER THIRTY

OF ALL THE things which I had feared and expected Miss Althea's appearance and words had not entered my mind. I sprang from my chair, at the sound of her voice, and whirled toward the door. Never had she looked more witch-like than then.

One distorted hand supported her against the door casing, the other was pointing at the desk, long bony forefinger stabbing the air. A scarlet dressing gown, long overdue at the cleaners, was belted around her. Her head, with its streaming locks, craned forward, and for the moment I really believed the old devil was glad that her prophecy had come true.

The men working over Mark all were turned in surprise toward her, and Chief Crane in taking a step nearer, moved out of line and revealed Mark's face, now resting against the doctor's arm.

To Miss Althea the shock of seeing that dead face was, for the moment, paralyzing. Her gloating features fell into lines of complete surprise and horror; her outstretched hand clutched at the casing beside the other. She swallowed convulsively; a strangled scream broke from her lips.

"It's Mark! It's Mark!" She seemed to fight for air to enable her to go on. A horrible gurgling arose in her throat. I thought she was going to have a fit; I think the chief thought so, too, for he hastened to her.

"He's dead—dead!" Her words were not a question, but the chief answered as though they were.

"Yes," he said soothingly, "he is dead."

She flew into the most violent rage I had yet seen. Words poured from her lips as a river in flood pours over a dam. Over and over she repeated the words which laid another terror upon me.

"Cary did it! He killed him! I know he did! I heard them quarrel! He did it! Cary did it!"

Over and over the same words fell upon my defenseless ears until Janet appeared in the doorway behind her aunt and, with Chief Crane's help, forcibly removed her. Then men glanced meaningfully at each other, as she was removed from view. We heard her voice for a time longer; then, they turned back to the desk.

I sank back into the chair the stranger had given me. I was more heart sick and terrified than before. Would they believe Miss Althea's words? How had she overheard the quarrel between the cousins? I was in the alcove all during it, and there was no backcase door open there.

I turned in my chair and craned my head to see the last backcase on the alcove side of the library. My heart sank. Its door was open! She certainly had heard every word as had I, but while I could, and would if necessary, repeat it approximately, she could be depended upon to distort it out of all semblance to truth.

Janet returned to the library and coming to me rested one hand upon my shoulder. I moved over on the seat and whispered to her to sit down with me, but she would not. Through the thick house coat I wore, I could feel her hand trembling against my shoulder, and I was certain she was suffering the same terror which tortured me.

"Where is she?" I whispered. "In her sitting room. I sent Alice to stay with her." Janet's voice, low, held the same quality of hardness it had from the beginning.

"They won't pay any attention to what she says," I whispered again, as much to comfort myself as her.

"Nobody knows what they'll do," she murmured back. "If Cary were only here. He isn't in the house; I've been to his room. Do you know where he is?"

"I heard him say he was going to see Horace Rand. What time is it?"

Janet stepped back and glanced into the hall. "It's twenty minutes of eleven. I do hope that's where he is. Nancy, if she sticks to what she said in here, she can make terrible trouble for us." Her eyes were wide and tormented. I didn't know what more to say to her; but she didn't wait for me to speak.

"I know what she said is not possible—but—" She sighed and was silent.

Chief Crane left the group by the desk and came to us.

"We will be ready to talk to you in a minute. Will you wait for us in another room?"

"We'll be in the morning room," Janet answered. "It's the room at the front on this side of the hall."

He nodded and turned away.

"Come, Nancy."

I rose from my chair, slipped my arm through hers and asked in an attempt to distract her thoughts: "Did you tell Mrs. Gould?"

"I had to. Lena's with her. I called the chauffeur and told him to come up to the kitchen and sit with Cook. I didn't dare leave her alone. If only Kaye and Cary would come! I can't imagine where Kaye is."

"And Captain Essex?" I asked, determined not to be silent.

"He hasn't waked up. Doctor Barnett ordered sleeping pills for him, he's been sleeping so poorly, and fortunately he took one tonight. I don't know what we'll do when he wakes. It'll kill him to learn about Mark!"

"Let Doctor Barnett handle it, Janet," I urged. "He will know what to do."

"That's a good idea, Nancy. I'll speak to him before he goes."

By that time we were in the morning room. I sat down feeling as weak as a new-born baby; but Janet walked restlessly from end to end of the room. I wished she would sit down and rest until the men joined us. We still had their inquisition to undergo.

It wasn't long before they came in. Chief Crane and the tall gray-eyed stranger. He gave me a smile and promptly took a seat by my side.

I didn't like such proximity. It made me feel too much like a prisoner, though now I know he did it to give me courage.

"Miss Essex, Miss Deane, this is Captain Fred Lancy. He was with me tonight when your call came through and he will take charge of this case."

I nearly jumped when Chief Crane announced the stranger's name. I had read about him in the newspaper not three days ago. He had just brought to a successful conclusion a case on the lower end of the Cape; and the paper had a great deal to say about him.

"One of the greatest detectives of all time," I remembered one headline read, and another, the one under his picture called him "The man who lives up to his creed."

That, too, was given in the article which described the detective as a college graduate with more than one degree, wealthy in his own right, who had gone into police work because he believed it was the greatest service a man could do his fellow men. The words of the creed, I shall never forget.

"The innocent must be protected; the guilty must be punished." With that as his code of living, I felt sure that this man would prevent any miscarriage of justice in our case, regardless of Miss Althea's wild accusation.

I raised my head and looked at him. He had greeted Janet and was now regarding me in friendly fashion. Impulsively, I whispered: "I'm so glad you are here."

Deliberately I emphasized the you.

He seemed surprised at my words, and, in a low voice, said: "You must have a reason for saying that. What is it?"

I threw discretion to the winds. Our only hope lay in this man, and I had always heard there are three persons to whom one must always tell the truth—one's doctor, lawyer and detective.

"Because this is just the climax of trouble which has been growing bigger and bigger for weeks. Only you can help us."

He gave me a keen calculating glance.

"You told me you are a secretary here; you should be able to help. Will you?"

I gave him back as critical a glance as he had given me. Kindness, intelligence and determination glowed in his eyes.

"I will, I'll do anything I can."

"Good. I will hold you to that promise."

The sound of an opening door and quick footsteps in the hall came to me.

Up to find the ville encased in ice and traffic moving at a snail's pace. Have you ever pondered the lack of serious auto mishaps under such conditions? Few persons ever are hurt when everyone is careful. It is when we begin to take chances that the old chap with the moving knife puts in his appearance.

Slowly to the post, there to meet Tom Brunner, head of the Camera Club. Tom is one of the best candid shooters even though he has not been snapping for so long. His work is good enough for exhibition anywhere. Chatted with Jim Shea and learned that the Rifle Club range in City Hall is now equipped and open to all members for practice even though the formal opening will not be held until next week. Russ Miller with his new rifle is leading the pack in score, shooting mighty close to the perfect mark.

Everyone seems pleased by the appointment of Paul Brown as State coach. And if I don't hear his name mentioned again before next football season that will be alright. Entirely too much of a good thing. Columbus papers are making more over the Massillon man's selection than they did over the election of Roosevelt.

Noted the bankers assembling for annual election and Clark Will heading back to his money with cigars and cigars. Admitted they were "campaigners." Worked, too, for Clark was re-elected president.

Dropped in at police headquarters and heard the boys in blue discussing present and future taxes. Seems as though folk are becoming a little more tax conscious all the time and that more and more are arriving at the exact conclusion that no one escapes taxes. More will be well aware of the fact when the relief and rearmament bills start rolling in. But let's enjoy ourselves while we can.

Everywhere sickness. Hardly an institution in the ville that is not represented on the flu list. Sniffles and red eyes are signs of the day. And the same is true elsewhere. A fellow publisher called and asked for help, saying that his force is pettically wiped out. And he sounded as though he should be in bed.

Read with interest the accounts of congressional hearings on preparedness. I think the situation is bad, but not quite so bad as it is being painted. We are in the war right now, but not enough folk realize the fact. In modern strife declarations are not necessary. One just gets in. I doubt that our doughboys will see action, but it probably will not be so long before the gobs start training guns, and our aviators may see flight action. Germany has to be whipped and we are destined to play an increasingly important role in the process. So, inasmuch as we will have to do it anyway, the proper action probably is swift and effective aid to England. Every day of delay means another day of delay in peace. Most persons, I think, are arriving at that conclusion or have been there for some time.

Incidentally, what about our unit of the Home Guard? Seems as though the Legion or some other organization is missing a bet there.

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN

MURRAY APPEASES

WASHINGTON—Phil Murray, new CIO head, apparently is pursuing a policy of trying to carry water on both shoulders. There was a plum for both leftwingers and antis in his latest organizational moves.

The antis cheered when Murray announced that Reid Robinson would replace Lee Pressman as secretary of the legislative committee. This was a big feather in the cap of the antis and a very significant slap-down for Pressman. In the last few years, during the rule of John L. Lewis, Pressman ran the committee with an iron hand.

Because of his use of leftist tactics, Pressman was disliked on Capitol Hill and was repeatedly in hot water. But through his drag with Lewis, none of his numerous CIO foes was able to curb him and he operated as he pleased.

His ouster from the key post caused much jubilation among the antis, who have been muttering disappointedly for weeks over Murray's failure to use the axe on strategically-placed leftwingers. But this pleasure was short-lived.

The next day Murray announced the appointment of John T. Jones, director of Labor's Nonpartisan League, as CIO legislative representative on Capitol Hill. This was a solar-plexus blow.

A United Mine Worker official, Jones is one of Lewis' most intimate henchmen and completely under his thumb. Jones owes both his UMW and LNL jobs to Lewis, and he is one of the few UMW leaders who followed Lewis in bolting to Willkie. Personally amiable and a hail-fellow, Jones is no leftwinger, but he takes his orders from Lewis and will follow any "party line" he lays down.

In CIO circles the appointment was taken as clear evidence that the shadow of Lewis still looms potent over Murray and that he does not feel himself strong enough to be his own boss.

GETTING READY

Lewis, confined to his home the past few weeks with a heart condition, is spending his time culling over UMW officer rolls. The inside word is that there is a double purpose behind this:

One: to take vengeance on local leaders who refused to bow to his pressure to support Willkie. Two: to put followers he can depend on into office in preparation for a major coal strike April 1, when the present UMW contract with the operators expires.

Seething with hatred of the President, and an extremist foe of his foreign policies, Lewis is credited with planning to make strong demands on the mine owners. The order for a special $2 assessment on all UMW members already has gone out to provide a strike fund if needed. And unless prevented by ill health, Lewis will head the UMW negotiating group—a key position to churn things up.

Privately, government labor chiefs make no secret of their concern over the situation. A major coal strike would play havoc with defense production, particularly in the spring when it will be greatly accelerated.

Transfusions—A Medical Problem of War

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

● Last week I mentioned the fact that the Committee on National Preparedness had appointed medical committees to attack certain problems and one of them is blood transfusion. One of my friends asked me just what problem was involved because he thought transfusion was a form of medical treatment which had been solved

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

technically. Perhaps my readers will be interested in the explanation.

Transfusion of blood from one human being to another has been, indeed, one of the great advances in treatment. It is valuable in surgical shock, in hemorrhage after any injury, and, therefore, of course, particularly valuable in war surgery for war wounds. Military practice, however, creates problems in regard to transfusion which are not met with in civil life.

Blood Banks

In large scale engagements a great deal of blood is needed and donors cannot be spared from the fighting line. The first attempt to solve this problem was to create blood banks. As is well known, people must be tested to see whether the blood they give will fit the blood of the recipient. There are certain classes known as "universal donors" whose blood can be transfused into anybody without harm. These blood banks are obtained from the universal donors and stored in sterile flasks with an anti-coagulant, sodium citrate, added. The trouble with this was that these banks are liable to degenerate and cause severe reactions when transfusion is given.

It took six months of the present war for the British to rediscover what was found in 1916; that glucose added to these blood banks will do much to preserve the blood and reduce reactions. It has been further found, however, by the British and French, that whole blood is not necessary. When hemorrhage occurs, and often in surgical shock, the principal difficulty is simply lack of fluid in the blood vessels. Salt solution put in simply pours out through the kidneys and sweat glands, but it is possible to replace the volume by the use of blood serum, or blood plasma, which is the substance which results after a clot has formed in drawn blood.

Use of Plasma

These plasma banks have proved very useful and are not subject to the deterioration that occurs in whole blood banks. The only objection to them has been their bulk. A new development has been that the plasma is allowed to dry so that very large amounts of what is potentially blood plasma can be stored in a relatively small space and moved with moving troops. All that is needed to be done is to add some sort of a dilutant so that this plasma is put back in solution.

This series of experiences, with gradual improvement, has been the result of a great deal of work on the part of the English Medical Research Council and the Medical Department of the U. S. Army.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

E. D. P.:—"Is the constant taking of Brewer's yeast harmful?"

Answer—I know of no report which indicates that it is possible to get an overdose of Brewer's yeast. It is the kind of a product that self-limits its own dosage because very few people would care to take more than reasonable amounts.

Looking Back in Pickaway County

FIVE YEARS AGO

John Wolford and Edward Kreisel of Pickaway Township and Joseph Scharenberg of Circleville left for San Pedro, Cal., where they were to visit Mr. Kreisel's brother, George. They also planned to visit Mrs. Wolford's parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Prindle, of LeHabra before returning at the end of the month.

Merchandise roughly estimated at $100 was stolen from the general store of George Dennis, Route 56, Five Points.

Mrs. Virginia C. Burns, Watt Street, filed suit in common pleas court for $15,936 damages from Charles Thimmes of Lancaster and a St. Paul, Minn., insurance company, for injuries suffered in an automobile accident while riding with Mr. Thimmes enroute from Circleville to Lancaster.

The Circleville budget for 1931 was set at $98,638 by the city council at an adjourned meeting.

Nathan Bohnert, Democratic representative, obtained the position as page in the general assembly for James A. Ball, 20, a student at Ohio State University, and son of Mrs. Anna Ball of Walnut Township.

CHAPTER THIRTY

OF ALL THE things which I had feared and expected Miss Althea's appearance and words had not entered my mind. I sprang from my chair, at the sound of her voice, and whirled toward the door. Never had she looked more witch-like than then.

One distorted hand supported her against the door casing, the other was pointing at the desk long bony forefinger stabbing the air. A scarlet dressing gown, long overdue at the cleaners, was belted around her. Her head, with its streaming locks, craned forward, and for the moment I really believe the old devil was glad that her prophecy had come true.

The men working over Mark all were turned in surprise toward her, and Chief Crane in taking a step nearer, moved out of line and revealed Mark's face, now resting against the doctor's arm.

To Miss Althea the shock of seeing that dead face was, for the moment, paralyzing. Her glowing features fell into lines of complete surprise and horror; her outstretched hand clutched at the casing beside the other. She swallowed convulsively; a strangled scream broke from her lips.

"It's Mark! It's Mark!" She seemed to fight for air to enable her to go on. A horrible gurgling arose in her throat. I thought she was going to have a fit; I think the chief thought so, too, for he hastened to her.

"He's dead—dead!" Her words were not a question, but the chief answered as though they were.

"Yes," he said soothingly, "he is dead."

She flew into the most violent rage I had yet seen. Words poured from her lips as a river in flood pours over a dam. Over and over she repeated the words which laid another terror upon me.

"Cary did it! He killed him! I know he did, I heard them quarreling! He did it! Cary did it!"

Over and over the same words fell upon my defenseless ears until Janet appeared in the doorway behind her aunt and, with Chief Crane's help, forcibly removed her.

Then men glanced meaningfully at each other, as she was removed from view. We heard her voice for a time longer; then, they turned back to the desk.

I sank back into the chair the stranger had given me. I was more heart sick and terrified than before. Would they believe Miss Althea's words? How had she overheard the quarrel between the cousins? I was in the alcove all during it, and there was no bookcase door open there.

I turned in my chair and earned my head to see the last bookcase on the alcove side of the library. My heart sank. Its door was open! She certainly had heard every word as had I, but while I could, and would if necessary, repeat it approximately, she could be depended upon to distort it out of all semblance to truth.

Janet returned to the library and coming to me rested one hand upon my shoulder. I moved over on the seat and whispered to her to sit down with me, but she would not. Through the thick house coat I wore, I could feel her hand trembling against my shoulder, and I was certain she was suffering the same terror which tortured me.

"Where is she?" I whispered. "In her sitting room. I sent Alice to stay with her." Janet's voice, low, held the same quality of hardness it had from the beginning.

"They won't pay any attention to what she says," I whispered again, as much to comfort myself as her.

"Nobody knows what they'll do," she murmured back. "If Cary were only here. He isn't in the house; I've been to his room. Do you know where he is?"

"I heard him say he was going to see Horace Rand. What time is it?"

Janet stepped back and glanced into the hall.

"It's twenty minutes of eleven. I do hope that's where he is. Nancy, if she sticks to what she said in here, she can make terrible trouble for us." Her eyes were wide and tormented. I didn't know what more to say to her; but she didn't wait for me to speak.

"I know what she said is not possible—but—" She sighed and was silent.

Chief Crane left the group by the desk and came to us.

"We will be ready to talk to you in a minute. Will you wait for us in another room?"

"We'll be in the morning room," Janet answered. "It's the room at the front on this side of the hall."

He nodded and turned away. "Come, Nancy."

I rose from my chair, slipped my arm through hers and asked in an attempt to distract her thoughts: "Did you tell Mrs. Gould?"

"I had to. Lena's with her. I called the chauffeur and told him to come up to the kitchen and sit with Cook. I didn't dare leave her alone. If only Kays and Cary would come! I can't imagine where Kays is."

"And Captain Essex?" I asked, determined not to be silent.

"He hasn't waked up. Doctor Barnett ordered sleeping pills for him, he's been sleeping so poorly, and fortunately he took one to-night. I don't know what we'll do when he wakes. It'll kill him to learn about Mark!"

"Let Doctor Barnett handle it, Janet," I urged. "He will know what to do."

"That's a good idea, Nancy. I'll speak to him before he goes." By that time we were in the morning room. I sat down feeling as weak as a new-born baby; but Janet walked restlessly from end to end of the room. I wished she would sit down and rest until the men joined us. We still had their inquisition to undergo.

It wasn't long before they came in, Chief Crane and the tall gray-eyed stranger. He gave me a smile and promptly took a seat by my side.

I didn't like such proximity. It made me feel too much like a prisoner, though now I know he did it to give me courage.

"Miss Essex, Miss Deane, this is Captain Fred Lancy. He was with me tonight when your call came through and he will take charge of this case."

I nearly jumped when Chief Crane announced the stranger's name. I had read about him in the newspaper not three days ago. He had just brought to a successful conclusion a case on the lower end of the Cape; and the paper had a great deal to say about him.

"One of the greatest detectives of all time," I remembered one headline read, and another, the one under his picture called him "The man who lives up to his creed."

That, too, was given in the article which described the detective as a college graduate with more than one degree, wealthy in his own right, who had gone into police work because he believed it was the greatest service a man could do his fellow men. The words of the creed, I shall never forget.

"The innocent must be protected; the guilty must be punished." With that as his code of living, I felt sure that this man would prevent any miscarriage of justice in our case, regardless of Miss Althea's wild accusation.

I raised my head and looked at him. He had greeted Janet and was now regarding me in friendly fashion. Impulsively, I whispered: "I'm so glad you are here." Deliberately I emphasized the you.

He seemed surprised at my words, and, in a low voice, said: "You must have a reason for saying that. What is it?"

I threw discretion to the winds. Our only hope lay in this man, and I had always heard there are three persons to whom one must always tell the truth—one's doctor, lawyer and detective.

"Because this is just the climax of trouble which has been growing bigger and bigger for weeks. Only you can help us."

He gave me a keen calculating glance. "You told me you are a secretary here; you should be able to help. Will you?"

I gave him back as critical a glance as he had given me. Kindness, intelligence and determination glowed in his eyes.

"I will, I'll do anything I can." "Good. I will hold you to that promise."

The sound of an opening door and quick footsteps in the hall came to me.

HOW TO GET OUT OF DEBT IN 1941...

First, total up all your bills and debts. Add in the things you need to buy.

Second, arrange a cash loan large enough to cover old bills and new purchases, too.

Finally, after you have everything in one place to pay, start cutting down your loan as fast as you can. Pay cash, as you go, for your day-to-day needs. Drive bargains. Save money, and apply the savings onto your loan. It's the sure way out of debt. Start now to get ahead.

Knights of Pythias Pay Tribute to Six Members

50-Year Men Given Honorary Life Memberships

Six men, members of the Philos Lodge No. 64, Knights of Pythias, for 50 years, were honored at a banquet Wednesday evening in the lodge room, and given life memberships for their years of true and loyal service. These knights were E. S. Neuding, John Ritt and Charles Stevenson of Circleville; John N. Cook of South Bloomfield, who at 51 is one of the oldest members; C. D. Hess, Avon, N. Y., and Henry Schlagetter of Cleveland.

Judge Meeker Terwilliger acted as master of ceremonies, Edgar W. Ellis of Columbus, a former grand chancellor, appearing as guest speaker after the dinner hour.

Ninety members and their guests were served a turkey dinner at 6:30 p. m. after the invocation by George C. Marion, prelate of the order.

The tables were arranged in the form of a triangle with the blue, yellow and red colors of the order being used in the appointments. Candles of the same colors in uniform crystal holders alternated with pots of lovely primulas down the center of the tables. A large bowl of cut flowers in the blue, red and yellow color theme centered the guest table.

Serving as toastmaster during a social hour marked by an atmosphere of fraternal goodwill and general congeniality, Judge Terwilliger called on Mr. Neuding and Mr. Stevenson, the two 50-year men present, who spoke briefly before being given their life membership cards.

Mrs. Elliott Crites of South Bloomfield responded for her father, Mr. Cook, who is seriously ill. Mr. Schlagetter sent fraternal greetings from Cleveland, which were read by S. L. Warner.

Joe Stephens of Columbus, a former Circleville resident, spoke briefly as a member of the lodge for more than 49 years. He will become a 50-year man in April of this year.

Mr. Ellis gave an informal fraternal address, telling of the early years of the lodge, its expansion as an alive vigorous organization and then discussing the reasons for the lessening of interest, not only in this group, but in all fraternal and church societies. He stressed the worth of the order as evidenced by the faithfulness of the 50-year men. He recalled pleasant associations with members of the group and spoke of the benefits as for the common good rather than for the individual.

He discussed the lodge homes in Springfield, outlined their growth, and spoke of their purpose as a reason for justifiable pride.

He closed his remarks with encouragement for the younger members, saying that the work they were undertaking was just as important now as it was 50 years ago when the six honored knights entered the order.

Special musical numbers by a brass quartet were enjoyed during the evening, the players including Delbert Puckett, Robert Kline, Clifford Kerns and Glen Barnhart.

The banquet committee was comprised of Richard Plum, Claude Kraft, Robert Dennan, Willis Liston and Nelson Sweyer. The excellent dinner was prepared by members of Majors Temple Pythian Sisters.

At the close of the evening, Judge Terwilliger called the roll of the 1941 officers of Philos Lodge including George Gerhardt, chancellor commander; Henry T. McCrady, vice chancellor; Mr. Kraft, master at arms; C. E. Fellers, master of exchequer; Orwell Warner, master of finance; Mr. Warner, keeper of records and seal; Mr. Dennan, master of work; Mr. Marion, prelate; Samuel R. Johnson, inner guard; Oakley Warner, outer guard; Mr. Plum, pianist.

Knights of Pythias Pay
Tribute to Six Members

50-Year Men Given
Honorary Life
Memberships

Six men, members of the Philos Lodge No. 64, Knights of Pythias, for 50 years, were honored at a banquet Wednesday evening in the lodge room, and given life memberships for their years of true and loyal service. These knights were E. S. Neuding, John Ritt and Charles Stevenson of Circleville; John N. Cook of South Bloomfield, who at 81 is one of the oldest members; C. D. Hess, Avon, N. Y., and Henry Schlagetter of Cleveland.

Judge Meeker Terwilliger acted as master of ceremonies, Edgar W. Ellis of Columbus, a former grand chancellor, appearing as guest speaker after the dinner hour.

Ninety members and their guests were served a turkey dinner at 6:30 p. m. after the invocation by George C. Marion, prelate of the order.

The tables were arranged in the form of a triangle with the blue, yellow and red colors of the order being used in the appointments. Candles of the same colors in uniform crystal holders alternated with pots of lovely primulas down the center of the tables. A large bowl of cut flowers in the blue, red and yellow color theme centered the guest table.

Serving as toastmaster during a social hour marked by an atmosphere of fraternal goodwill and general congeniality, Judge Terwilliger called on Mr. Neuding and Mr. Stevenson, the two 50-year men present, who spoke briefly before being given their life membership cards. Mrs. Elliott Critch of South Bloomfield responded for her father, Mr. Cook, who is seriously ill. Mr. Schlagetter sent fraternal greetings from Cleveland, which were read by S. L. Warner.

Joe Stephens of Columbus, a former Circleville resident, spoke briefly as a member of the lodge for more than 49 years. He will become a 50-year man in April of this year.

Mr. Ellis gave an informal fraternal address, telling of the early years of the lodge, its expansion as an alive vigorous organization and then discussing the reasons for the lessening of interest, not only in this group, but in all fraternal and church societies. He stressed the worth of the order as evidenced by the faithfulness of the 50-year men. He recalled pleasant associations with members of the group and spoke of the benefits as for the common good rather than for the individual.

He discussed the lodge homes in Springfield, outlined their growth, and spoke of their purpose as a reason for justifiable pride.

He closed his remarks with encouragement for the younger members, saying that the work they were undertaking was just as important now as it was 50 years ago when the six honored knights entered the order.

Special musical numbers by a brass quartet were enjoyed during the evening, the players including Delbert Puckett, Robert Kline, Clifford Kerns and Glen Barnhart. The banquet committee was comprised of Richard Plum, Claude Kraft, Robert Denman, Willis Liston and Nelson Sweyer. The excellent dinner was prepared by members of Majors Temple Pythian Sisters.

At the close of the evening, Judge Terwilliger called the roll of the 1941 officers of Philos Lodge including George Gerhardt, chancellor; Henry T. McCrady, vice chancellor; Mr. Kraft, master at arms; C. E. Fellars, master of exchequer; Orwell Warner, master of finance; Mr. Warner, keeper of records and seal; Mr. Denman, master of work; Mr. Marion, prelate; Samuel R. Johnson, inner guard; Oakley Warner, outer guard; Mr. Plum, pianist.

Otterbein Guild
The January session of the Otterbein Guild was held at the home of Miss Mary Ruth Noggie, 1014 Pickaway Street. Mrs. Clarence Radcliff led the group in prayer after the guild covenant was repeated.

Miss Mary Ellen Kirkpatrick was in charge of the program which opened with a piano solo

Trego-Godden
Mr. and Mrs. Dean C. Godden of Williamsport have announced the marriage of their daughter, Sara Jane, to Mr. Earl Trego, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Trego, Sr., of that community. The ceremony was performed Thursday, January 9, in Huntington, W. Va. The bride is a 1940 graduate of Williamsport High School, the bridegroom having been a member of the 1938 class of the same school.

For the present, they are residing at the home of Mr. Trego's parents.

Mrs. Trego, Sr., will be remembered as the former Etta Hornbeck of Circleville.

American Legion Auxiliary
Members of the American Legion Auxiliary met Wednesday at the Post room, Memorial Hall, with Mrs. B. T. Hedges, president, in charge of discussion of organization business.

The evening was devoted to plans for the annual banquet of the Pickaway County Farm Bureau which will be served by the auxiliary February 1 in Memorial Hall.

After tentative discussion of the mid-winter conference of the State association, which will be March 1 in Columbus, lunch was served by Mrs. Ralph Ward, chairman, and other members of the hospitality committee.

Earnest Workers' Class
Members of the Earnest Workers' Class of the Methodist Church enjoyed a cooperative dinner Wednesday in the social room of the church. Mr. and Mrs. George Lytle were guests in addition to class members.

The dinner table, lighted with pink candles, was beautifully decorated with cut flowers, including carnations, sweet peas, daisies and roses.

No entertainment was planned for the occasion, the guests enjoying an informal social hour.

WASHINGTON, BLOOMFIELD AND DUVALL SCHOOLS SUSPEND OPERATIONS

PUPILS GATHER AT SALT CREEK, BUT GO HOME

Influenza Epidemic Goes On In District; Others May Discontinue Classes

INSTITUTES CARRY ON 50,000 Ohio Children Ill, State Official Says After Survey

With three more Pickaway County schools closed because of fast mounting lists of absentees, the influenza epidemic in the district continued unabated Thursday. Health officials insist that the disease is generally in a mild form, but urge utmost precaution. Closing of Washington Township, South Bloomfield and Duvall village schools was announced early Thursday, and the possibility existed that other boards of education might decide to close their doors in an effort to break up the epidemic. Washington's action was taken Wednesday evening, while South Bloomfield, where 50 percent were absent, and Duvall closed their doors at the end of Wednesday's classes.

Salt Creek, first school in the county to close, tried to reopen Thursday, but had an absentee list of 38 percent. The reopening will be attempted again Monday.

To date the only schools in the county operating are Darby, Monroe, Scioto, Walnut, Ashville and Madison: Circleville, Wayne Salt Creek, Pickaway, New Holland, Perry, Deer Creek, Tulliton, Jackson, Washington Duvall and South Bloomfield having suspended operations.

Laurelville school tried to reopen Thursday, but was dismissed again when only one third of the pupils were present. Another opening effort will be made next Monday.

Businesses Suffer
In the meantime practically every business house in Circleville was suffering because of employees were unable to perform their duties. Factories, too, were reported operating with abbreviated forces.

F. K. Blair, county extension agent, said that scheduled institutes were being continued, the Scioto event drawing a good crowd Wednesday.

State estimates show that 50,000 pupils in Ohio are absent because of the epidemic. Van Wert, Massillon and all of Fayette County's buildings closed Wednesday.

"Flu" weather continued to prevail in the Circleville and Pickaway County community Thursday, with a drizzle which started early Wednesday evening continuing through the night and into Thursday morning.

Total rainfall recorded Thursday by Miss Abbe Mills Clarke, local weather observer, was .25 inches, with temperatures in the low forties. Fog Wednesday night and Thursday made motor traffic hazardous, although no accident were reported by either the police or the sheriff's officers.

Higher temperatures with intermittent rain will prevail in the Pickaway County area during Thursday afternoon and evening, weather experts predict.

TIBBETT IN "OTELLO"

The America air debut of Stella Roman, new prima donna soprano, and the season's first broadcast opera appearance of Lawrence Tibbett will highlight the performance of Verdi's "Otello," which will be broadcast from the stage of the Metropolitan Opera House, Saturday at 2 p. m.

The Metropolitan's new star soprano hails from Romania. Her recent arrival in the United States was delayed six weeks by transportation difficulties, necessitating postponement of her American debut until New Year's night when she won resounding acclaim in the title role of Verdi's "Aida."

In "Otello," Miss Roman will have the role of Desdemona and Tibbett, who has recovered from
